The Slighted Maid's

GARLAND,

Compoled of feveral excellent

NEW SONGS.

I. The Slighted Maid.

II. John and Sufan.

111. The Coachman got with child by the Postillion.

IV. Bunch of Green Ribbons ..

V. The Answer.

VI. The Lullaby.

Licensed and Ent a according to Order.

Co

Pu

W

For

Pr'

For Bel

W

I

Pr'y

The

Befi

Wh

Befi

Wh

We

T

Att

The Slighted Maid.

HERE's one that loves as many others do,
And now to my grief I bid you adieu;
He strives to torment me, and do the worst he can,
But I never will grieve for a false deluding man;
Let him go, &c.

He led me and drove me till I came to loves school, But for to tarry there I was not such a fool, The doors he bolted thinking to keep me there, But the doors I broke open, and then I got clear. Let him go, &c.

And when I got my liberty I had reason to rejoice,
When I love another I'll make a better choice,
For such men as those are plenty to be found,
And before I will have him I'll search the world
Let him go, &c. [round.

Some fay he's endu'd with a great deal of wit,
And those that enjoy it won't profit a bit,
For if he has any he doth it all save,
To keep him when he is old, and carry him to the Let him go, &c. [Grave.

Some fay he courts another, but the maid he will deceive,

The fool does think that I for him will grieve; No, no, I'll let you know I go no more that way, To be scar'd by an Owl, that seldom slies by day.

Let him ... &c.

Come all you young maidens draw near unto me, And I'll let you know how cautious you should be, Put half a pound of reason into a grain of sense, With a large spring of rhyme and as much prudence. Let him go, &c.

JOHN and SUSAN.

in,

ol, e, ar.

ce,

-ld

id.

he re.

ill

y,

y.

COME thy way Susan and sit down by me,.

Let us consider about matrimony;

For thou art my true love, my joy and my dear,

Pr'ythee love let us be married this year.

Pray honest John do not talk of such things, For marriage great trouble and forrow doth bring, Besides times are hard and provision is dear, Which makes me loath to be married this year.

If times be hard and money be scant,
I'll do my endeavours love thou shalt not want;
I'll follow my calling with diligent care,
Pr'ythee love let us be married this year.

When some couples are married I say, They have at their marriage three shillings to pay, Besides other charges lies very dear, Which makes me loath to be married this year.

If I should bring children as I am afraid, At the birth of each child there's two shillings to pay Besides gossips and nurses they stand very dear, Which makes me loath to be married this year.

Did you not promise me long time ago, We should be married before it was long;

Bu

W

Ja

Hi

Th

TI

AI

0

0

M

In

W

T

P

S

1

1

So do not prove inconstant to him that's thy dear, But Pr'ythee love let us be married this year.

I cannot deny these words you relate,

I did make a promise to be your mate;

Since alteration of times are so clear,

Which makes me loath to be married this year.

So farewel, farewel, fince it is fo,
I am resolved to another I'lt go;
For good Luck or bad Luck I'll never fear,
For I am resolved to marry this year.

Oh! stay, John, stay, oh! why in such haste, I'll be your true love as long as life lasts, For good Luck or bad Luck I'll never fear, For I am resolved to marry this year.

All things in readiness they did provide,
And in less than ten days he made her his bride;
The bells did ring and music did play,
For joy that John and Susan was married this year.

The Coachman got with Child by the Posilion.

OOD people give ear to my comical fun, Which not far from London was done; The jest it is merry it will make you smile, It is of a Coachman that was got with child.

His name it is John, With a Merchant did dwell, His business did mind, And was liked very well; But what all the fervants
Was most surprised at,
John all on a sudden did grow very fat.

The Merchant call'd for his Coachman,
His coach to prepare;
The Coachman was not to be found I declare,
The Merchant up to the bedchamber did go,
And there found the coachman oppress'd with woe.

Crying out my back,

O my back and belly,

O what is the matter come tell unto me,
My back and my belly,
Indeed I'm not well,

With that he out with a terrible fqual,
Go fetch me the midwifes,

e, ar.

Or else I shall die;
Then another pain came,
And aloud he did cry,
Pray Sir let your good Lady come,
Some baby's cloathes look or I am undone.

Down runs the chambermaid, cookmaid and all, The chambermaid went for the midwife to call, And coming along unto her did fay, How could this be gotten dear Madam I pray.

The Midwife thought the girl was mad, And running up thairs found him very bad;
The Midwife calls out 1'l! not touch not I,
Then the poor Coachman aloud he did cry.

Then Madam try the best of your skill, Confess the whole matter to you I will;

T

T

W

I

1

0

0

MA

B

B

HH

H

B

N

T

I

1

B

N

I'm one of your fex the Postilion beguil'd, And he is the man that got me with child.

The Midwife went and found the right Lord, And into the world a lovely fou was brought. They call'd the Postillion and wish'd him much joy, He hug'd and kis'd his own lovely boy.

Now John lies in like a person of same, The ladies and gentry a visiting came; And when she gets up womans cloaths she shall wear And be a wet nurse to a Lady so fair.

The Merchant swears the child he will-keep, And settle upon it a pretty estate; The Lady she was pleas'd to the life, The Postilion he swears he'll make her his wife.

The Bunch of Green Ribbons.

Once I had a true Love but now I have none;
Once I had a true Love
But now I have none:
Since I must not have him,
Since I cannot gain him,
Since I must not have him,

Last night in sweet slumber, I dreamt I see, Last night in sweet slumber, I dreamt I see, My own dearest jewel, my own dearest jewel, My own dearest jewel, smiling by me. But when I awoke and found it not so, But when I awoke and found it not so,

I will never have none.

Then foon I bethought me, Then foon I bethought me, Then foon I bethought me, Which way I should go.

I set out for Dublin, for France, or Spain, I set out for Dublin, for France, or Spain, On ship board I enter; On ship board I enter, My life I'll boldly venture, And never return to old England again.

But now he is married, as I heard them fay, But now he is married, as I heard them fay, He has wed young Nancy, He has wed young Nancy, He has wed young Nancy, His own hearts delight.

But fince he's got married,
No longer I'll murmur;
A bunch of green Ribbons,
Green Ribbons, green Ribbons,
A bunch of green Ribbons
I'll wear for his fake.

e;

There's no one shall know the tears I have shed,
There's no one shall know the tears I have shed,
I think its an honor, it must be an honor,
I think its an honor, to die for his sake,
But since he's got married,
No longer I'll murmur, &c.

THE ANSWER.

But fince I am resolved to die for my dear,
I'll chuse six young virgins my cessin to bear,
And all those young virgins I now do chuse;
Instead of green ribbons green ribbons green ribbons,

Instead of green ribbons a garland shall wear.

And when in the Church in my grave I lie deep, Let all those fine garlands, fine garlands, fine garlands,

Let all thole fine garlands hang over feet:

And when any of my fex behold the fight;
They may fee I have been confrant been confrant,
They may fee I'm confrant to my hearts delight.

THE LULLABY.

P Eaceful flumbering on the Ocean,
Seamen fear no danger nigh;
The winds and waves in conftant motion;
Sooth them with their Lullaby,
Lullaby, lullaby, lullaby, lullaby,
Sooth them with their lullaby.

As the winds tempestuous blowing, Still no danger they descry, The guiltless heart its boon bestowing, Soothe them with their lullaby.

Lullaby, lullaby, lullaby, lullaby, Soothe them with their lullaby.